The main aim of this article is to get familiarize you with Apowersoft Screen Capture Pro 1.3.4 incl Patch,.According to the International Association for Protection Against Pollution (IAPA), contaminants released into the atmosphere each year are currently exceeding the global sustainability threshold levels. Therefore, there is an urgent need for advances in decreasing emission of pollutants. In response to this, environmental technologies have been developed to collect volatile organic compounds (VOCs) from the atmosphere and to limit the emission of VOCs. In some cases, this technology for emission reduction can be considered as a source of energy recovery to generate renewable power and to increase fuel efficiency of diesel engines. In other cases, it can be considered as another approach to CO2 sequestration or alternative to reduce the requirement for fossil fuels for cars and trucks. The increasing generation of VOCs contributes to changes in the atmosphere and affects ecosystems.

Thus, there are many advances in environmental technologies. Natural and synthetic nano-materials have the potential of adsorbing and destroying VOCs. Assembled one-dimensional (1D), two-dimensional (2D) and three-dimensional (3D) material can be used to capture VOCs. Different material shapes can be used to capture VOCs, including nanorods, nanosheets, nanowires, nanoribbons, carbon nanotubes and graphite. The combustion of gasoline and diesel engines release VOCs and generate nitrogen oxides (NOX). The combustion of VOCs also contribute to the formation of ozone. To reduce the emission of ozone, 1D and 2D nanostructures have been applied. For example, 1D nanotubes, also known as CNTs, have been used as ozone adsorbents. CNTs have a high adsorption capacity, a high surface area and adsorption temperatures of 800° C. and 500° C., respectively. Thus, CNTs are also effective for trapping and removing VOCs. 2D nanosheets, such as graphene, are also used as adsorbents for VOCs. Graphene has a high specific surface area and tunable pore size. Graphene can absorb VOCs, such as formaldehyde and methanol and can also adsorb NOx. This is mainly due to the π - π interaction between the graphene sheets and the electron cloud of VOC molecules. The removal of NO
