* Hardcore mode is temporarily closed. Official Story Spoiler(click to show) Fallen Hero Game Overview: RPG Maker MV - Emotional: Redemption (from now on to refer to this, this will be "EMO") is a pack produced by RPG Maker MV that is aiming to recreate the story of the game with various modifications. The concept of this pack is to recreate the original story as much as possible, which will be based on the real life EMO. Character Creation Screen: One of the big differences of the pack from other typical RPG maker MV packs is that there will be a much larger number of characters in the cast. Although there may be complaints about the number of characters, you can definitely say that this pack is aiming to have more characters than other standard packs. Due to this, the number of avatar slots will be expanded, with three more character slots for each of the three classes that you can create. Also, the maximum character limit will also be increased from 30 to 60. There is no space for adding the name of the class or item. But there is also a max of four buttons to be added per slot. As a side note, the character creation screen is very reminiscent of the different character creation screens from Final Fantasy XII. Not only that, but EMO has its own limited accessories that are exclusive to the pack, with the requirement that you have access to them. This pack has access to EMO's unique items from the start, which will help you in your journey. As usual, you can use one of the stock avatars, but we will go over them shortly. But there will also be custom avatars you can use, of which you will be able to create up to three. This pack also supports the custom profiles that were introduced with RPG Maker MV: Mega Physics, so it is possible to create your own characters based on your avatars. Unlike the majority of the packs, the GM that you get with this pack will be hidden when you first start the pack. This is because he will be only present during the prologue, and after the first boss battle, the GM will become available to you. During that time, his goal is to educate you about EMO and how she will help you through the pack. Many other characters that are available in the game will also become available once the GM is available. Of course, the interesting characters will still be locked due to the limitation

- An Encyclopedic Overview This amazing YouTube video overview of the history of art shows many fascinating details that you probably never knew existed! Art aficionado and Art Institute instructor, Philip Jankowiak, assembles a collection of animated links on one page that collectively chronicle the long and colorful history of art in the United States and in American History. The great extent and magnitude of the continent's land mass, as well as the sheer diversity of the people and what they could invent, created a phenomenal artistic community. Philip Jankowiak's page has multimedia recordings and links that trace the broad spectrum of human invention and innovation from Neolithic cave paintings to the advances of modern communication, engineering, math, science, and philosophy. This is a long and colorful story. This month's topic is Greek and Roman art. Here are a few examples of important works I found by searching this topic. With all its powers we create new knowledge, explore the space all around, which exists in connection with our earth, and very often build a plane to parallel the plane of the earth. In all this we frequently forget that space, in its turn, is a public and social thing, which is in constant change and need of constant thought and activity... We have missed the opportunity to bring out to the mind the language that it is capable to express itself with. No one has created more than he knows.No one has explored more than he is curious to learn.No one has thought at least without raising questions that echo through both our human awareness and our human contacts. So grab a siesta, break out some yardsticks and get ready to have a few adventures. What? You were asleep? Don't worry, we'll see if you can correct that. * Just a disclaimer: I'm not Scott by the way. Gameplay: In Sleep Tight you're Bob. Bob is a nerdy teenager working as a maid. He falls asleep one night and suddenly he's in a magical world populated by adorable creatures. Well, sort of. The surroundings are supposed to look like a typical South American school, but what you see is that of a rich kid's childhood home. The primary objective is to keep your green, fuzzy friends safe by building the best castle ever. This will require fortifying your castle to withstand enemies, gather resources and reinforce your walls with magic. You have to defend it from most anything for the longest time and you could be stuck for hours. How can you keep a sloppy, daydreaming 14-year-old from getting caught by his employer? You can teach him to use a sword and a shield, luckily, Sleep Tight allows you to sleep shift easily, so your sidekick can rest and you can keep an eye out for trouble. You can attack during rest mode, but you'll still need to make sure your hero and his friends are safe, so during combat you have to interact with enemies, use items and put up barricades. This is done by touching different objects on the touch screen, such as doors, walls, safes and more. You can also push nearby creatures, which creates a barrier between them and your castle. You can also use tools such as the shovel to dig up dirt and throw it into holes, or the hammer to break objects, but beware that you need to keep your defenses up so your enemies don't invade your sleep shifts and earn a permanent demotion. It may take a while to see how your house is set up and know where to put down stuff and put up stuff, but it will give you a sense of accomplishment when you're done. You also use magic by touching the touch screen to cast spells. Just remember that magic takes time and that your primary objective is to keep your toys safe. The touch screen controls are pretty simple and can easily be picked up by your kids. You won't go over your head with the controls, plus they'll be happy to
