Download and use WPS Office: the perfect office. first rule when it comes to killing your enemies in Call of Duty is to show up. This simple tenet holds true for every mission, and teamplay in Call of Duty: Black Ops 4 is where it really shines. Even though team is still your best chance at ending a round in your favor, it's up to you if you want to help your team out. You could just kill everyone and hope for a win, or you could do something more proactive. Here are the best options available to you during each round. Best Call of Duty: Black Ops 4 Team Deathmatch Roles 'Lessons Learned' Role Choosing the Lesson Learned Role should be a no-brainer when you're trying to make the most of teamplay. It gives you access to your best weapon, if you want it, and the added distance to find team members and open fire. The wide health pool and increased reload speed means you can dish out bullets and combo at high efficiency, so long as your teammates know where to look. The role also gives you access to the most powerful weapon in the game, the H.U.V. Here's an example: If you want to stay alive, just don't go on the offensive. The health pool, reload speed, and movement speed of the Lesson Learned Role makes it easy to dodge and escape your enemy's fire. It's also one of the best roles to play if you want to generate power, but don't necessarily want to open fire. In a fight against two enemies, you can use the Lesson Learned Role to maintain your health pool so you can rush through with one or more melee attacks. The Lesson Learned Role is also great for chasing a specific target. If you need to kill an enemy that's got you pinned down, try throwing a grenade or an explosive towards them and then rush forward with the Lesson Learned Role.

The distance from their cover will make it easy to shoot
