The NASA Port Angeles Challenger Carrier Project provides a realistic experience to those wishing to recreate the April 6th 1983 Space Shuttle Challenger disaster. Inspired by the launch of STS-51L, NASA's first Space Shuttle mission in 1981, the Space Shuttle Challenger project brings you a detailed and heavily-programmed, real-life simulation of shuttle launch and landing. Constructed from authentic Shuttle Atlantis flight data, with advanced terrain modeling and 3D graphics, this product takes the complexity of a complex physics based simulation and makes it easily accessible and fun to play. NASA Port Angeles Challenger Carrier is "First Person 3D" simulation where you are the astronaut on the flight deck of Shuttle Atlantis. Atlantis is carrying a new class of missions to the International Space Station: the first Hubble servicing mission, Space Station deployment of experiments and trash, and finally, a new class of research experiments. Easy to play, hard to master, true to life shooter experience! More than 50 hand-made maps, the ultimate fighting game experience! Free update every month: new weapons, new maps, new game modes! Q: The -eq operator for -eq with JavaScript doesn't return a boolean I use a -eq operator in JavaScript with a boolean value. But it returns a string. Can anyone explain why? Here's the script: if (car == "BMW" || car == "Ford") { console.log("This is a boolean operator."); console.log("string is " + car + "."); console.log("boolean is " + (car == "BMW" || car == "Ford") + "."); } Here's the output: this is a boolean operator. string is BMW. boolean is false. A: From the MDN documentation: The -eq (strict equality) operator returns false if any operand is a number or string and it returns true if all operands are numbers or strings and their values are exactly equal. The -eq operator returns false if any operand is an object or an array and it returns true if all operands are objects or arrays and their values are equal. And an array of booleans: [true, true, true, false, true, false, true, true, true, true] is not the same as [true, true, true, false] so the conditional operator fails to evaluate true as expected:

let bools = [true, true, true, false, true, false, true, true, true, true]; console.log("1", bools[0] == bools[1] == bools[2] == bools[3] == bools[5] == bools[6] == bools[7] == bools[8]); console.log("2", [true, true, true, false, true, false, true, true, true].every(bools[0])); Instead of using arrays of booleans, use a function. For example, the sorted() method returns an object which has a property called sorted that is either true or false, so you can use it for this purpose

What's new in DJ Streamer:

Superstar Racing is a 2011 racing game for the PlayStation 3, released on the PlayStation Network in October 2011. It features a large roster of professional basketball players at every NBA team. Gameplay Superstar Racing is designed to be an accessible and authentic basketball action game. Players are given the option to choose a team that they wish to represent in the game, with all NBA teams playable. The game starts with the selection of a team, then gameplay begins with the player controlling an individual player, while the computer controls his teammates. The player can roam the entire court freely, or choose to perform designated actions such as defense, rebounding, or sprinting to keep their advantage. The focus of the game is to gain possession of the ball and score as many points as possible. Moving the player is limited by the number of buttons on the Dualshock 3 controller. Player dribble and alter direction is performed by a combination of Right Analog stick and Left Analog stick with an optional Right Stick button used for the assist option. Passing is also handled by the controller, as this skill must be toggled on/off with the Right/Left Stick in either direction. The game also allows for a slam dunk button to be created with the D-pad which will cause the player to get dunked. A maximum of three players may use an assist button, otherwise the game reverts to a pick-up game, requiring the player to dunk and get bashed by the player next to them. The game tends to reward players who maximize their offensive game with better technique and more range on their shots. Good defenders who can move the pace and track the play tend to be very effective at taking the ball away. Conversely, poor defenders will find themselves being deceived by inferior passing skills as simple passes tend to float away. Player creation The player can start with a typical NBA player, or make their own by choosing from 900 body parts provided.

Roster The game's roster consists of 467 NBA players.
Development Superstar Racing was developed by Kabam and published by EA Sports. Reception According to Metacritic, Superstar Racing was the best selling game for the PlayStation Portable, PlayStation 3, and Xbox 360. References External links Category:2011 video games Category:PlayStation 3 games Category:PlayStation 3-only games Category:PlayStation Network games Category:Six property brands Category:EA
